HARDWARE AND BUGGIES.

SHELLED MATANZAS FORTS.

Admiral Sampson bombarded and silenced the Spanish batteries in position and in course of construction at the entrance of the harbor of Matanzas. He did it with the flagship New York, the monitor Puritan and the gunboat Cincinnati. Not one of the American ships was struck, the Spanish gunnery being wild. The number of dead and wounded on the Spanish side must be considerable.

While the New York, Puritan and Cincinnati were reconnoitering for the purpose of locating and destroying the formidable defenses being constructed the flagship was fired on by the batteries on Point Rubal Cayo and Point Maya, guarding the entrance to the harbor. The New York replied instantly. The Puritan steamed in behind the New York and engaged the fortifications on Point Maya while the New York went to starboard, close up to the land and poured her shells into Rubal Cayo. The Cincinnati, which had remained well astern under orders, signaled for permission to engage and received it, and soon was firing shells into the fort on the west side of the bay. The batteries fired explosive shells and most of them fell wide of the mark. One burst beyond the stern of the New York and a schrapnel shot exploded over her. It took the three ships just 15 minutes to silence the batteries. It is believed that much damage was done to the town also. The marksmanship of the American gunners was remarkable, nearly every shot taking effect.

All told, the United States ships fired 86 shots at the forts. This is by actual count. The forts fired probably 25 shots. After waiting in vain for the Spanish to renew the engagement the ships withdrew, leaving the batteries in ruins.

Matanzas lies at the head of a bay about four miles from the sea. This bay at its mouth is three miles wide. On the west side of the bay is Point Rubal Cayo and on the east, side Point Maya. These points have a very slight elevation above the sea, but the configuration of the harbor is such as to give the batteries on them a commanding position.

Far more important than the destruction of the Matanzas batteries is the conclusion about the future which may be drawn from the bombardment. This conclusion is that Havana is absolutely at the mercy of the United States fleet whenever it chooses to open fire. Admiral Sampson with guns which amount to less than one-tenth of his fighting force silenced practically three batteries in 15 minutes. He steamed right in on them as close as he could get and not one of our ships was touched. The incident has greatly encouraged the naval officers and they believe that when they bombard Havana they will destroy all the defenses in about one hour.

Planning to Invade Cuba.

First Lieut. Andrew S. Rowan, of the Nineteenth infantry, under orders from the war department, was landed on the Cuban coast somewhere west of Santiago, on his way to the camp of Gen. Calixto Garcia. He will represent the war department in arranging for the co-operation of the insurgents in the invasion of eastern Cuba by the forces of the United States. The time and place of invasion will be controlled by events and the character of Rowan's dispatches. It is expected that Gen. Calixto Garcia will dispose his forces to cover a landing of United States troops as prearranged. Rowan speaks Spanish and knows Cuba, and is an expert map maker.

Lieut. J. C. Fremont, commanding the torpedo boat Porter, landed on Cuban soil and delivered to the Cuban insurgents important plans for their co-operation with the U. S. in the reconquest of Havana. The sole purpose of Lieut. Fremont's expedition was to communicate with Gen. Gomez regarding the part the insurgents should play in the plan of campaign.

The strategic boards of the U. S. army and navy are being urged to supplement the pacific blockade by the taking of one port on the north coast of Cuba and one on the south coast, for the purpose of establishing a juncture with Gen. Gomez's insurgent troops at Sancti Spiritus and with Gen. Garcia's insurgent forces in Santiago de Cuba. It is said that Gomez and Garcia have the men and the enthusiasm capable of striking an effective blow once they have arms in hand, and that the only reason for their present inaction is their failure to have adequate ammunition for a strong forward movement on the Spanish forces. Recent conferences between the Cuban military officials at Washington and Gen. Miles leaves little doubt that the war department will equip the Cuban forces.
